Author: Barış Selim Uzun
 Original Title: Kuzey Odanın Canavarları
 Publisher: Kafka Kitap
 Pages: 144
 Publication Date: 2025

Barış Selim Uzun (b. 1997) is a Turkish writer whose debut novel The Monsters in the Northern Room won the 2024 Kafka Debut Novel Award. He studied international trade and philosophy, worked in cinema and short films, and now balances his corporate career with literary writing.

MONSTERS IN THE NORTHERN ROOM

In this haunting and immersive novel, the protagonist, Eşref Teba, navigates a world both intimate and absurdly bureaucratic, where personal grief, societal surveillance, and hidden desires intertwine. Following the death of his wife Melike, Eşref is forced to confront his tangled past, the labyrinthine procedures of official “process officers,” and the ethical and emotional weight of secrets that govern both public and private life. The narrative delves deeply into human psychology, exploring themes of grief, guilt, and moral responsibility, while maintaining a tense, almost dystopian atmosphere, punctuated by meticulous depictions of surveillance, ritualized bureaucracy, and the eerie power dynamics between individuals and authority.

The novel’s dystopian undertones and meticulous depiction of state control evoke a sense of Orwellian tension, yet it remains intensely personal and introspective. Eşref’s story is as much about internal reckoning as it is about external forces shaping human behavior, and the novel balances raw emotional intensity with darkly satirical commentary on power, conformity, and human frailty.

Winner of the inaugural Kafka Debut Novel Award in 2025—judged by leading figures of Turkish literature including Ayfer Tunç, Deniz Yüce Başarır, Latife Tekin, Sema Kaygusuz, and Mahir Ünsal Eriş—the book introduces a striking new voice in contemporary Turkish literature.

CAHİDE BİRGÜL COLLECTION

Cahide Birgöl made a striking literary debut with When the Shadows Retreat, a novel that caused considerable attention for its haunting portrayal of human loneliness and inner desolation. Renowned for her ability to probe the depths of the human psyche, Birgöl blends psychological tension with elements of crime and suspense, gradually stripping away the veneer of reality to reveal its stark core. Her novels create an unsettling thriller-like atmosphere, guiding readers into the darkest recesses of the soul. In her exploration of class, morality, and emotional isolation, her work has often been compared to that of Patricia Highsmith and Ruth Rendell. With her lucid prose and unflinching characters, Birgöl stands as one of the most distinctive voices of modern Turkish literature.

Born in Ankara in 1956, Cahide Birgöl studied engineering and architecture. She wrote for Pazartesi magazine and Radikal newspaper, and her radio plays were broadcast on TRT Ankara Radio. Her stage play Emin Bey Pension won third prize in the 1999 State Theatres Playwriting Competition. She passed away in 2009.

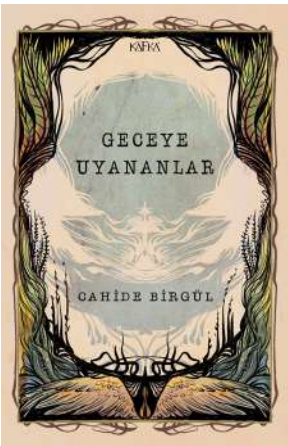

WHEN THE SHADOWS RETREAT

Esin lives alone with his ailing father, until an uninvited guest disrupts their fragile world. As this stranger gradually infiltrates his life, Esin is forced to confront haunting ghosts from his troubled past.

In her debut novel, Birgöl makes the uncanny her protagonist, creating a chilling story that strips bare loneliness, trauma, and the fragility of the so-called safe haven of "home."

THE SECRET OF THE MEDALLION

The Secret of the Medallion is a fast-paced historical adventure inspired by real events and ancient legends. When a young medical student sets out to find a cure for his mother's mysterious illness, he is drawn into a dangerous quest shaped by shamanic healing, martial arts, and forgotten knowledge. At the heart of the story lies a powerful medallion whose secret traces back to Genghis Khan and reveals a hidden chapter of the 17th-century Ottoman world. As the journey moves across continents and timelines, from modern Turkey to the sacred lands of Ötüken, a group of unlikely allies uncovers the legend of an elixir of immortality and the human cost of pursuing absolute power. Blending history, mysticism, and high-stakes adventure, the novel explores the clash between ancient wisdom and modern science, asking how far one is willing to go in the name of healing, love, and immortality.

Mehmet Yavuz is a neurologist and the founder of the REEM Neuropsychiatry Center in Istanbul, internationally recognized for his pioneering work with transcranial magnetic stimulation (TMS), including early applications in Alzheimer's disease. The Secret of the Medallion marks his debut in fiction, bringing his strong medical background and interest in ancient and holistic knowledge into a historical-mystical narrative.

THE SECRET WITHIN WORDS

Seven years after leaving, Faruk returns to a city that has split into two; old and new. He has changed just as deeply. Caught between staying and leaving, adapting and resisting, loving and letting go, his fragile balance is shattered when time seems to freeze. Confronted with events he never planned for, Faruk must relearn how to move forward; how to grasp the moment, how to look at life from a different angle, and how to unravel the secret power of words. For the mind proves to be an unreliable harbor, and forgetting, time's cruelest gift, its most beautiful curse. Condemned to forget, humanity has always written to leave traces behind. As past and present intertwine, Faruk embarks on an inward journey shaped by loss, memory, and the quiet force of unspoken connections. In a world where nothing should remain hidden forever, Sözün Sırrı (The Secret Within Words) explores the pain of forgetting, the inevitability of beginning again, and the truths that surface when silence finally gives way to language.

Demet Özdemir (b. 1975) studied Public Finance at Uludağ University and Sociology at Istanbul University, and her work has appeared in leading Turkish literary magazines such as Varlık, Edebiyat Nöbeti, and Oggito.

VORDONISI: ISTANBUL'S LOST ISLAND

A thousand years ago, İstanbul was shaken by one of the greatest disasters in its history: the earthquake of 1010. Amid the ruins, a young girl named Mara is given a second chance at life, but survival will demand courage, sacrifice, and the unraveling of secrets long hidden. Mara's origins lie in a mysterious island; home to healers, oracles, and magical schools, that guards ancient wisdom and dangerous powers. From the shadows of the Middle Ages to the secret tunnels beneath Hagia Sophia, Mara embarks on a perilous journey where history and legend intertwine. In an epic clash between light and darkness, Mara must decide not only her own fate but also the destiny of a world on the edge of transformation.

İpek Kobaner graduated with a degree in Classical Archaeology and earned her master's degree in Archaeometry. Today she is a full-time writer, combining her academic background with a passion for storytelling. She shares her expertise in history through seminars and her weekly YouTube broadcasts.

This is the story of two lovers from a mysterious past: Melih and Tülay. As we go on a nostalgic journey through the love letters they once exchanged, a detailed portrait of a lifetime gradually unfolds. Ahmet Erol traces the fragile border between love and loss, desire and absence. Through a lyrical and deeply emotional narrative, the novel portrays the aching solitude of being abandoned and the haunting persistence of memory. The characters grapple with betrayal, longing, and the human need to hold on—even when faced with the inevitability of separation. With a voice both poetic and piercing, Erol captures the intensity of passion and the silence it leaves behind.

Ahmet Erol (b. 1961) studied International Economic Relations and served in various senior positions at the Ministry of Finance before retiring in 2020 to dedicate himself fully to writing.

MY BELOVED KADIKÖY

Anyone who has nurtured love within knows that every kind of love exists with its trials and tribulations, its joy and its sorrow. The heart carries everything—until one day it grows weary, seized by the urgency to save itself, to keep beating. And in that moment, it is time to leave the one you love exactly where they stand, and walk away without looking back.

Kadıköy Sevgilim is the story of an unplanned life journey that begins in Fikirtepe during the darkest days of Türkiye's political history. It does not promise the scent of the sea to its readers, but it will undoubtedly compel them to revisit many of the remnants those days left behind in this country—through a different, perhaps sharper, lens.

SNOW AND PEARL

On the longest night of the year, renowned composer Deniz İler hosts a grand event. Gece, a mysterious woman in a simple black dress, moves through the hall as if unseen. Watching from afar, Deniz's son Kaya recalls their past: a passionate love that ended abruptly when Gece vanished from his life and the orchestra.

Years later, they meet again as musicians—violin and cello playing together. Can two separate voices merge into harmony?

Snow and Pearl is a delicate exploration of love, desire, and the complex interplay of separation and connection, told through music, symbolism, and longing.

Nihan Kaya graduated from Boğaziçi University and holds an MA from the University of Essex's Centre for Psychoanalytic Studies. She completed her PhD at King's College London and is currently pursuing a second PhD at University College London (UCL). Her second novel, The Attic, won the Writers' Union of Turkey Award.

MIST

This is a journey to the inner world of a child who grew up under the shadow of her family. The readers will find themselves facing with repressed memories, unspoken emotions and the deep loneliness of a child. How is a child's naive perception and vulnerability shaped in a world full of secrets kept hidden by adults? How is the search for love, trust and identity kneaded with the traces of the past? This novel deals with the complex structure of the family through the eyes of a child, and depicts the fine line between love and violence, and the individual's struggle for self-realization. Kaya strikingly reveals the weight of the past and how this weight shapes one's identity. Mist is not a novel; it is a mirror that the author holds to her readers.

HIDDEN SUBJECT

The Hidden Subject is the compelling story of two women, Bihter and Revnâ, as they confront their pasts and come to terms with their identities. The novel takes readers on a gripping journey, delving deeply into the inner worlds of its protagonists. Bihter grows up in a family deprived of love and affection, while Revnâ struggles with the pain of her mother's death. These traumas leave lasting marks on their adult lives, complicating their search for identity. The Hidden Subject presents Bihter and Revnâ's stories from two distinct perspectives, offering readers a broader understanding of their experiences. Bihter's chapters are told in the first person, while Revnâ's are narrated in the third person. This dual narrative style allows readers to fully grasp the emotions and inner worlds of both characters.

The novel explores not only the confrontation with the past but also themes of love, family, and identity. The ups and downs Bihter and Revnâ experience in their journeys encourage readers to reflect on their own sense of self. Written in a fluent and engaging style, Nihan Kaya's storytelling draws readers in, creating emotional intensity and fostering deep empathy with the characters. The Hidden Subject is a powerful and moving novel that explores trauma, the search for identity, and family relationships.

FINAL HOUR

The novel follows a family on the verge of departure for Australia, where the parents have secured better professional prospects and a more hopeful future for their child. Their suitcases are packed, the decision is irreversible, yet before heading to the airport they spend one final hour with the family they are leaving behind. Over the course of sixty minutes, grief, tension, and suppressed emotions surface as an elderly couple says goodbye to their only daughter, fully aware that this farewell may be permanent.

Final Hour engages with one of the most defining social realities of contemporary Turkey: emigration. While earlier waves of Turkish migration in the 1960s consisted largely of working-class laborers who struggled to adapt to their host countries, today it is young, educated individuals who find themselves unable to adapt to the conditions of their own country and therefore choose to leave. Grounded in one of the most emotionally charged issues in Turkish society, psychologist and author Üstün Dökmen frames the narrative through the concept of “ambiguous loss,” as defined by therapist Pauline Boss, exploring how individuals endure, negotiate, and survive a loss that remains unresolved and incomplete.

Üstün Dökmen (b.1954) is a psychologist and professor. He holds a PhD in psychological counseling and guidance and is currently a faculty member at Ankara University's Faculty of Educational Sciences.

THE FREE SHADOW

In a town where every living being—even objects and plants—casts a shadow with emotions of its own, shadows secretly mirror their owners' virtues and flaws. Though unseen by humans, they love, quarrel, judge, and even discriminate, believing the shadows of people and animals superior to those of plants and objects. One ordinary afternoon, something extraordinary happens: Neşe's shadow breaks away. For the first time, a shadow is free.

At first, freedom feels intoxicating. But joy soon gives way to loneliness and fear. As the shadow wanders alone, it sparks panic and suspicion in a world unsettled by what no longer follows the rules.

Navigating life on its own, the shadow learns that freedom is not just release from restraint, but the weight of choice and responsibility. Özgür Gölge (Free Shadow) is a witty, philosophical allegory about identity, fear of the “other,” and the true cost—and courage—of being free.

MURDER IN THE VILLAGE

In a quiet seaside village where nothing ever happens, the arrival of the new gendarmerie commander, Pars, stirs mild excitement among the locals. But when the first murder in the village's history shatters the calm, excitement turns into shock. Determined to solve the case, Commander Balkır—Pars's former teacher at the academy—steps in to help.

As the investigation unfolds, the quirky and colorful villagers complicate every lead, turning the mystery into a delightful puzzle. With a touch of romance, a dash of humor, and a classic whodunit atmosphere, Murder in the Village brings the charm of Richard Osman-style cozy crime to Turkish literature.

THE REVOLUTIONARY KITCHEN

The Revolutionary Kitchen explores the lives of revolutionaries through the lens of food—what they ate, what they refused to eat, and how their tables reflected their ideologies, contradictions, and humanity. Moving beyond manifestos and battlefields, the book uncovers the personal kitchens of figures such as Lenin, Mao, Castro, Napoleon, Atatürk, Behice Boran, and Deniz Gezmiş, revealing how power, memory, and identity are intertwined with the act of eating. Blending meticulous research with vivid storytelling, it offers both cultural history and intimate recipes—from Lenin's milk soup to Atatürk's spinach pastry—transforming them into political and emotional artefacts. Richly detailed yet highly accessible, this cross-cultural work will appeal to readers of food writing, political history, and cultural studies, showing that even revolutions leave traces on the tongue.

SHAMANS, GODS, ATHEISTS

Shamans, Gods, Atheists explores one of humanity's most complex and enduring questions: why do humans believe, and could we ever exist without belief? Drawing on a cultural and intellectual journey spanning more than 50,000 years, Sadık Usta traces the emergence of belief from early human awareness of death to the explosive rise of symbolic thought and creativity. From the shamanistic age and cave art to burial rituals, Göbeklitepe, and the birth of polytheistic religions, the book examines the anthropological, cognitive, and philosophical roots of faith and doubt. Moving across animism, shamanism, theism, deism, pantheism, and atheism, Usta maps a bold intellectual route—from the first shaman heroes and wrathful gods to the fearless thinkers who challenged belief itself. The first volume of a planned trilogy, Shamans, Gods, Atheists offers a compelling investigation into how belief systems emerged, evolved, and ultimately gave rise to skepticism and atheism, illuminating the deep connection between faith, doubt, and the human mind.

Sadık Usta (b. 1960) lived in Germany for 16 years and studied History and Political Sciences at the University of Stuttgart and Goethe University Frankfurt. In 2012, he completed his master's thesis, "Utopia and Revolution: Modernisation Movements in Turkey (1908–1938)," at Goethe University.

MEANING, COURAGE, DEATH, NOTHINGNESS

Meaning, Courage, Death, Nothingness is a comprehensive introduction to existential psychotherapy, an approach centered on the human search for meaning, freedom, responsibility, and encounters with death and nothingness. Rather than aiming for change through predefined goals, existential therapy invites clients to encounter themselves more fully. Through reflective questioning and therapeutic dialogue, individuals gain awareness of their choices, limits, and possibilities, allowing freedom to emerge through understanding rather than prescription. Accessible yet in-depth, the book explores the philosophical roots of existential thought, key existential thinkers, phenomenological method, session structure, and case formulation, with a strong emphasis on clinical practice. Designed as both an entry point for newcomers and a reliable reference for practitioners, Meaning, Courage, Death, Nothingness serves as a thoughtful guide to understanding human existence within the therapy room.

Dr. Ferhat Jak İçöz is a clinical psychologist and existential psychotherapist. He completed his education in Istanbul, New York, Liverpool, and London, and earned his doctorate in existential psychotherapy in London. THE COURAGE TO WRITE

The Courage to Write explores the psychology of creativity through the act of writing, offering a guide to self-realization and personal growth. Nihan Kaya examines how the drive to create is deeply tied to our courage to exist, and how blocked self-expression can lead to psychological struggles. She shows how transforming pain into creativity is essential for both individual and collective healing, offering readers tools to reconnect with themselves and embrace their innate creative instincts.

Part psychological exploration, part inspirational manifesto, this book is a powerful guide for anyone seeking to discover their own voice and live authentically.

Nihan Kaya is a Turkish writer and psychoanalytic scholar, holding a PhD from King's College London and currently pursuing a second PhD at UCL. Formerly a lecturer in psychology, she is the award-winning author of The Attic.

NO FAMILY IS TRULY GOOD NO SOCIETY IS TRULY GOOD ALL CHILDREN ARE GOOD

In this groundbreaking trilogy, Nihan Kaya challenges deeply ingrained social norms around family, society, and childhood.

In No Family is Truly Good, she questions the myth of the “ideal family,” exposing the invisible walls and emotional wounds created by stereotypes such as “family is everything” and “parents are sacred.” No Society is Truly Good examines how individuals are shaped to conform, how suppression beginning in childhood continues into adulthood, and how societal rules and boundaries alienate us from ourselves. Finally, All Children Are Good focuses on childhood as the foundation of adulthood, showing how unprocessed pain is passed from generation to generation and offering a powerful call to break cycles of trauma.

Accessible, thought-provoking, and deeply humane, this trilogy speaks to anyone seeking to understand themselves, their relationships, and the hidden dynamics of modern life.

THE HEALING POWER OF NATURE: MEDICINAL PLANTS AND HOME REMEDIES VOL.1&2

The Healing Power of Nature series is a comprehensive reference work that brings together the traditional use of medicinal and aromatic plants in folk medicine with modern scientific knowledge. Drawing on more than forty years of professional experience, herbal medicine specialist Ayhan Ercan offers a systematic guide to the correct identification, safe use, dosage, and home-based preparation of herbal remedies.

The first volume focuses on core medicinal plants used for common ailments, detailing traditional preparation methods such as teas, tinctures, pastes, poultices, and steam applications. The second volume expands the scope with additional medicinal plants, fermentation processes—particularly vinegars—and a wider range of health conditions. Rather than promoting commercial products, the series empowers readers with reliable, practical knowledge for applying natural remedies safely at home.

Ayhan Ercan (b. 1970) has been immersed in the family tradition of herbalism since childhood. With over forty years of experience in medicinal and aromatic plants, he is the originator of TABDER (the Association of Herbalists, Spice Merchants, and Medicinal & Aromatic Plant Growers) and a recognized authority in traditional and applied herbal medicine.

FOUR DOORS, ONE ROOM: LIVING WITH BIPOLAR DISORDER

Four Doors, One Room: Living with Bipolar Disorder invites readers to view bipolar disorder through a deeply human lens—not merely as a diagnosis, but as a lived experience and a reflection of life's diversity. Written in clear and accessible language by psychiatrist Dr. Dilek Yeşilbaş, the book reveals the lives behind the label. Through four interconnected stories, each symbolized by a door opening into the therapy room, the book explores different forms of bipolar disorder and related conditions, shedding light on family life, parenthood, work, social relationships, and societal attitudes. Alongside personal narratives, it offers reliable information on the nature of bipolar disorder, treatment options, and common misconceptions. Blending clinical knowledge with empathy and insight, Four Doors, One Room aims to reduce stigma, foster understanding, and remind those living with bipolar disorder—and their loved ones—that they are not alone. It is a hopeful, informative guide that reframes bipolar disorder as part of the human condition rather than a defining limitation.

Dr. Dilek Yeşilbaş is a psychiatrist and psychotherapist who has worked extensively in public healthcare institutions, with a particular focus on bipolar disorder and schizophrenia. She currently runs a private practice, where she continues her clinical work with patients.

PHILOSOPHY UNBOUND

Is there a purpose to the evil and suffering that has plagued humanity since prehistory? If none of us chose to exist, why do we still choose to have children?

In a universe governed by laws, is genuine free will possible, and where do these laws come from?

These questions remain compelling because they are both deeply personal (Could my life have been otherwise?) and universally significant (What is justice in a world without freedom?). Organized into four chapters—The Question of Evil, Antinatalism, Free Will, and The Simulation Hypothesis—Immanuel Tolstoyevski (pseudonym) draws on mythology, literature, neurology, and quantum physics to explore the ideas and dilemmas that continue to challenge human thought.

ENCYCLOPEDIA OF FALLACIES

“Man is not a rational animal; he is a rationalizing animal.” – Robert Heinlein

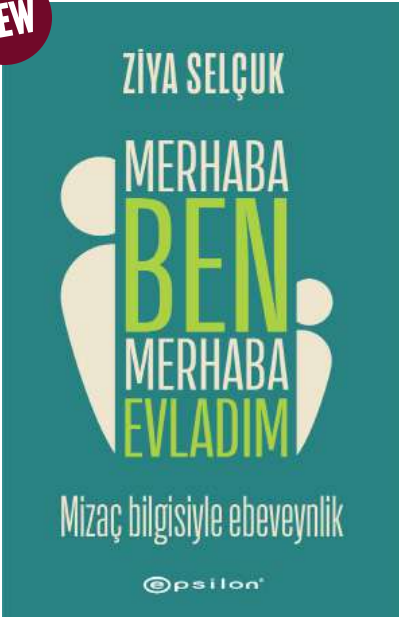

Will learning about fallacies make you less happy? Should you read this book — or merely pretend you have? If we all understood ad hominem, would our democracies improve? When was the last time an argument truly changed your mind? Encyclopedia of Fallacies explores logic, belief, debate, free will, evolutionary psychology, group dynamics, rhetoric, storytelling, love, lust, and revenge — everything that makes human reasoning both impressive and deeply flawed.

We like to think we are rational, yet we are constantly drawn toward slogans, tribal loyalties, comforting certainties, and the illusion of being right. This book does not promise to fix the world or transform your inner primate into a superhuman. Its aim is older and simpler: to help us confront the limits of our own thinking and, in doing so, approach the ancient Delphic injunction — Know thyself.

MEETING MYSELF, MEETING MY CHILD

Meeting Myself, Meeting My Child offers a refreshing and reassuring perspective on parenting, one that sees it not as a struggle, but as a meaningful and manageable journey when approached with awareness. While welcoming a new life into the world, parents are reminded that a child is not an extension of themselves, but a unique individual with their own temperament and inner world. Inspired by the ancient call to "Know Thyself," the book presents a practical roadmap for building a healthy parent-child relationship by first understanding oneself. It emphasizes temperament as the foundation of character, guiding parents to recognize their own inner ground before shaping the environment in which their child will grow. Blending timeless wisdom with accessible insight, Meeting Myself, Meeting My Child invites parents on a gentle journey of self-discovery, one that makes parenting clearer, calmer, and more conscious.

Ziya Selçuk (b. 1961) is an educator, academic, and author. He holds degrees in psychological counseling and guidance and a PhD from Hacettepe University. Between 2018 and 2021, he served as Turkey's Minister of National Education and has authored numerous books and articles on education, learning, parenting, and temperament.

THE WORLD ASUNDER

The World Asunder explores humanity's enduring tendency to perceive life through oppositions, and the possibility of moving beyond them. Drawing on the metaphor of an orchestra, where different instruments produce distinct sounds yet create a single harmony, the book invites readers to reconsider the idea of contradiction as separation rather than as part of a greater whole. Ziya Selçuk, educator and former Minister of Education of Turkey, examines how individuals relate to opposing forces within themselves, their societies, and their times. Through examples spanning thousands of years, he questions why change is often mistaken for conflict and how normative divisions turn natural differences into rigid binaries. Rather than choosing sides, The World Asunder calls on readers to recognize the flow that connects opposites and to reclaim the human capacity to see unity without denial or fragmentation. A reflective and thought-provoking work, the book offers a timely meditation on coexistence, balance, and shared meaning in an increasingly polarized world.

WHO ARE THESE PEOPLE? 23 REMARKABLE FIGURES FROM HISTORY

Who Are These People? 23 Fascinating Figures From History proves that history is anything but boring. Far from solemn rulers sitting on their thrones, this book introduces readers to some of the most surprising, daring, and eccentric characters the world has ever known—from emperors with strange obsessions to fearless commanders, powerful female pharaohs, and spies in disguise.

Written in a lively, conversational tone by acclaimed author Mahir Ünsal Eriş and brought to life with dynamic illustrations by Töre Sivrioğlu, the book presents 23 key figures spanning ancient times to the modern era, including Sargon of Akkad, Hammurabi, Cyrus the Great, Socrates, Alexander the Great, Caligula, and Boudica. Readers discover not only who these people were, but also how they lived, what they ate, how they dressed, and even how they spoke in their own languages.

Blending humor, storytelling, and historical insight, this first title in the Who Are These People? series invites young readers on an entertaining time-travel adventure from Sargon to Nelson Mandela, making world history accessible, memorable, and fun.

THE DAWN CIVILIZATIONS: THE STORY OF MEDITERANEAN

The Mediterranean region captivates with its deep blue waters, rugged coastal landscapes, and lush olive groves, but millions of years ago it was a land of deserts, steppes, and shrinking salt lakes. In a geological instant, water levels rose, connecting land masses and nurturing some of history's most fascinating civilizations. Archaeologist Ulaş Töre Sivrioğlu invites readers on a compelling journey to uncover the mysteries of these ancient societies. Blending rigorous scholarship with myth and imagination, this book explores the dawn of civilizations and the enduring legacies of their discoveries.

Ulaş Töre Sivrioğlu (b. 1980) is a historian and archaeologist specializing in Protohistory, Asia Minor archaeology, and cultural heritage. He has participated in numerous excavations and conservation projects and has published widely on Iranian, Byzantine, and Islamic art and history.
