Gittiği her yerde doğanın bir parçasını ceplerinde taşıyan oğlum Selim'e ve yere dökülen yaprakların büyüyünce ağaç olacağına inanan kızım İpek'e...

Once upon a time, behind the Mount Kaf, there was a place known as the 'Land of Shopping'.

Vegetables, fruits and even flowers grown in this country were put into packages. After the packaging work was finished, they were lined up in rows on the shelves of huge markets.

On one of these shelves in the market, there lived a liquid oil named Aykız yellow and bright as the sun and clear as water. She was cheerful, helpful and also very funny.

Aykız woke up one morning and found herself on the kitchen counter of a house. She was sleeping so deeply that she couldn't remember how she got here.

ZEKER

Nevertheless, she loved this new place, where children's voices and laughter filled the kitchen. The cheerful voices of the children made Aykız very happy.

One day the mother of the house opened the lid of Aykız and poured all the oil into a big pot. Aykız was very happy that she would finally fulfil her duty.
