One beautiful, sunny morning, the little skunk, Fussfuss, thought to himself, "What a beautiful day to find some new friends," and he began to wander through the forest.

People had come to the forest to have picnics. Fussfuss was always very curious about people and the dogs with them. He wanted to meet them, to be their friends.

Until today he had never had any friends. Everyone who saw him ran away. One day he asked his mother why.

His mother explained, "We have something very special. When we feel like we are in danger, we can spray a bad smell at humans or other animals, and it makes them go away. The smell is so bad that it makes everyone run away."

Fussfuss had never felt the need to spray his scent until today. One day he decided to give it a try, and he tried to spray his scent.

At first he was only able to spray a little bit but he didn't give up.

As he kept trying, he was able to spray as well as his mother.
