To all those playing with their inner child...

Every night, the Daydreaming Koala looks out his bedroom window, looking from here to there, at the shooting stars. Where do these stars come from, and where are they going? And, and what else is there in the sky?

Every night he was just so curious about what was going on. He wanted to understand it. Hmm.
What could he do?
What could he do? Of course, he could design a rocket ship!
X Æ A-XII
It could be launched into the vast, endless sky...
And it would immediately solve all the secrets of the universe!
