To all grandfathers with hobbies...

Zipzip and Hophop were two little frogs. They lived in a shiny lake in the emerald-green forest. On the water, there were lots of colorful water lilies. Their house was under the biggest lily, between the rocks.

Zipzip and Hophop spent most of their time together. They jumped and hopped, went to school, and raced on the lake. But their most favorite thing was to visit Wise Clockmaker Frog and hear his stories about time.

Wise Clockmaker Frog was the master of time. Whenever someone's clock broke, got old, or they had trouble with time, they went to him. He took little working pieces from old clocks and put them together to make new ones. His clocks never broke. Thanks to him, life in the forest always on time. Whoever wore his clocks also carried his stories in their pockets. They finished their work on time and still had moments just for themselves. Wise Clockmaker Frog knew that the biggest secret of being happy was using time well.
